

Anna Tadsen

Ms. Boyd

AP English 12: Literature and Composition

19 April 2010

early alliteration!

A Synthetic Solution

FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF SELF-ESTEEM AND BEAUTIFICATION OF THE NATION

establishing bond with readers

In today's world of twig-like movie stars, eating disorders, and obsession with outward appearances, it is understandable that ~~every one of us has a deficient amount of~~ ~~self-esteem~~—that is unless we make the conscious decision to change ourselves. People can always attempt to make changes to their own lifestyle, but realistically this will always end in failure. Dieting or weight loss programs are another option, but who can be sure that these aren't just scams? This leaves only one plausible alternative for the necessary modifications that we all need: plastic surgery.

wonderfully humorous name!

~~As a plastic surgeon myself,~~ Dr. Sue P. Fishal, am intimately acquainted with the miracles that can be performed with a scalpel. After a few short hours under, anesthesia, thousands of dollars spent on the procedure, and weeks of recovery one can be completely transformed—nearly instantaneous benefits! A person is guaranteed a fantastic life when he or she decides to undergo plastic surgery. ~~When features are altered~~ ~~self-confidence automatically receives an enhancement—cosmetic surgery cannot make a~~ ~~person any less attractive than they naturally are,~~ as well as assures the attention of that significant other; let's face it, everyone judges one another based on appearance alone.

Each and every one of us requires the improvements possible only through surgical procedure, and thus everyone should attempt to have the procedures performed without delay.

title and subtitle clearly enclosed on Swift's

A positive aspect of this widespread beautification is the fact that it is self-sufficient. ~~Silicon and saline cannot be expected to perform their wonders forever, and so patients will need to return for touchup procedures.~~ Additionally, because of the ease associated with altering one's appearances, those who are able can simply continue to adjust their features until he or she finds the right combination; eventually this could become a common occurrence similar to getting a haircut or a pedicure. Thus a cycle of surgery will form, creating a constant flow of money throughout the entire nation.

Explain more clearly

BUS

Unfortunately it may take a considerable amount of time for this idea to take hold because the older generations may not see the benefits—frankly making sense because they won't live long enough to make the surgeries worth while. This is why I am choosing to start this movement with the younger generation of newly employed citizens. ~~We start the trend of improvement with you, not only will you be more likely to afford the procedures, but~~ you—as the upcoming fathers and mothers guaranteed to attract a mate and reproduce thanks to plastic surgery—~~will also more quickly accomplish the~~, ultimate goal of extending surgery to children.

Once adults see the positive effects of plastic surgery they will want to enhance the lives of all their loved ones (including their children). While this is an honorable motivation in itself, children do have more pressing needs than simply looking attractive.

~~Children—as we have all experienced—are subject to cruelty and over all maliciousness from their peers based on appearances alone.~~ If every child is able to improve their natural features early on in life—potentially as babies to maximize benefits—bullying will no longer exist because every person will be beautiful. Subsequently, the improved self-esteem of all children will as a result cure childhood obesity (since children will be so satisfied with themselves that they will no longer have the desire to over indulge in shame).

Next step!

Although the solution seems simple to me, I can see where others would find flaws with my suggestion. Cost, for example, could be a hindrance to those who are not so well-off in life. However, if one simply thinks economically it will be realized that

~~with the increased demand for surgery the salaries of surgeons like me,~~ who are now? → genuinely having a rough time trying to figure out how to cover our own bills with the few million dollars we have—~~will also increase.~~ In turn we doctors will spread our new wealth into well-deserved rewards for ourselves, and ultimately help the builders of said rewards by boosting the entire economy. Therefore the lower class citizens, will eventually see a rise in payrolls that will allow them to pay for the surgery they so desperately need.

My proposal has the potential to refine all of humanity; all that is needed is for my flawless plan to be implemented. You as intelligent citizens realize that greater appreciation for plastic surgery will enable the most significant aspects of life to be attainable for all: money, beauty, and unavoidable elation. So, let us be the seeds that sow this movement. Go and scrutinize yourselves; consider your own faults—each and every one—because there is honor in self-deprecation. Remember, when you come to the imminent conclusion that you need a surgeon's aid to finally have a satisfying life, ~~I will~~ ~~be here~~ for you and your children.

economic consideration argument

rhetorical device